WEATHER—Fair and warmer tonight. Sunday fair.

Missouri's anti-bucket shop law became effective today. The question is, will it be enforced.

When the heated season arrives, it will be some consolation to think of those cold days we had in June.

The weather bureau sees some hot weather just ahead. Farmers and baseball fans are hoping the weather man was looking this way.

The man who proposes by mail to a woman is throwing himself liable to arrest for using the mails to defraud.

President Roosevelt left off fighting Professor Long long enough to tack down a few carpets and brush the cobwebs out of the corners of his big Oyster Bay summer house.

Reports that "Icele" Fairbanks and "Fire Aarin" Foraker are to be assassinated at Senator Morgan's funeral have been circulating. Wouldn't that be a mixture?

Japanese editors are angry because they cannot kick up a war over a broken window pane. Some of them are probably looking for a job as war correspondent.

LESLIE M. SHAW ON GRAND-STANDING.

Former Secretary of the Treasury Leslie M. Shaw, who has been mentioned as a presidential possibility, was the principal speaker at the commencement exercises at the Ohio Wesleyan university Thursday, and he gave voice to some expressions which mark him as a deep thinking man, and which may explain his retirement from public life as it is today. Mr. Shaw evidently has some ideas which do not coincide with those of President Roosevelt and his followers. A few of the most striking things said by Mr. Shaw were:

"The spirit of our time is not philosophical but commercial.

"Neither statesmanship nor religion engross our thought. We are active, ambitious, self-tormented people, and we do everything but meditate. Public opinion is sentimental and sometimes hysterical. Deep and abiding conviction, based on logical analysis, is not alone apparent in sermon, public discussion or public utterance. The press, the platform and the pulpit are vocal with what is hoped to be popular, while the element of inherent correctness is oftentimes a needed matter of secondary consideration. Just now we are placing a premium on expediency.

"Our ideals were never more exalted, our standards never more exact, and our disapproval of everything and everybody that falls below our conceptions of what should be was never more severe. The age is weak only in its failure to analyze, and this failure has its root in our commercial activities. Hasty judgment is always unsafe and usually wrong.

"The United States has solved many problems, most of them in wisdom. We are now confronted with as many perplexing questions as ever harassed a sane people. If we are to justify our boasted educational advantage and demonstrate that a republican form of government is as well suited to a great and congested nation as to a small and relatively rural population, we must take the necessary time to the study of statecraft."

The truth of Mr. Shaw's statement that commercialism engrosses the thoughts of the great majority of Americans cannot but be recognized by every student of conditions. Personal gain prompts by far the greater number of persons to action. Politicians, ministers, doctors, lawyers, and in fact those engaged in all walks and pursuits. Statesmanship has to a very large degree been lost in the mad rush of office-holders for personal popularity, in the hope of perpetuating themselves in office; ministers are prone to leave off preaching the doctrines of Christianity in its purity and simplicity and preach those things which tickle the ears of the congregations; doctors are inclined to cater to those things which are popular, and instead of joining hands in the work of alleviating suffering, each goes about with a knife up his sleeve for all other members of the profession; lawyers are constantly arrayed against justice. Instead of making an honest endeavor to ferret out the truth, they do all in their power to cover up and color facts which would operate against their clients. And so it could be cited, through all vocations and professions. The reason for all of this is commercialism and personal popularity.

Mr. Shaw took occasion to leave a few clubs at the present administration and they were not amiss. It is true that there are many very weighty questions which must be solved; questions which are of vital importance to the nation and upon their solution depends the future welfare of the country and its people. These questions are not given the sober, honest and earnest consideration which they deserve. The administration has mapped out a course of action and insists upon its ideas being adopted. It insists so strenuously that the "big stick," which was first considered as a joke, but which has come to be recognized as a reality, is wielded over the heads of all who dare oppose.

And what is at the bottom of all this? Personal popularity, the same which prompts the great majority of the people today to action. In common parlance this would be termed "grand-standing."

Leslie M. Shaw has sized up the situation pretty thoroughly. Is it not time that the national administration return to the principles of statesmanship rather than pursue its policy of rule or ruin, and that all other vocations and professions adopt anew the policy of doing the greatest good to the greatest number.

Police Court

Because Miss Algie Carey, a clerk in the Storace Confectionary store objected to Burrell White taking for more than a half hour over the telephone, White got mad and called the young woman a few choice names. He kept up this abuse until the clerk called Officers Cusic and McDonough who arrested the offender. The young woman filed an affidavit against White in the police court this morning charging him with insulting her.

At his hearing this morning White was fined $5 and costs and was released when the amount was paid.

Y. M. C. A. HAPPENINGS

Marion simply played rings around Mansfield in a hotly contested series of volley ball games played in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium last night. Somebody might have told the visitors that they could play the game but they soon became conscious of how badly they had been deceived when the local aggregation went up against them. There wasn't anything left of Mansfield but just smoke when the champions got through with them. Marion won the series of three straight games by the following scores: 21-12; 21-3; 21-17.

MOVEMENT TO PAVE DELAWARE AVENUE

Started at Meeting of Committee Held Friday.

Catholic Cemetery Association will be Unable to Share Any of the Expense.

A movement to pave Delaware avenue from the end of the present paving to the part of McKinley park facing on the avenue was started at a meeting of the street and alley committee of the city council, held Friday afternoon. The trustees of the Catholic cemetery association, who met with the committee were asked if they would be willing to pay their share of the cost. The cemetery representatives stated that they would be unable to meet any of the expense.

It is probable that the question of paving the avenue will be brought up at the meeting of the council, Monday night. The pavement would be about a quarter of a mile in length. The meeting was called for the purpose of considering a trade of two strips of land which is being negotiated by the council and the Catholic cemetery association. On the west of the Catholic cemetery is a strip of wooded land which the city would like to annex to McKinley park. The council offers to trade a strip of land from the park at the south of the cemetery for the strip at the west. Blue prints of the two pieces of land will be prepared and placed before the council, Monday evening.

Science at School.
The education of our young in science at school is another hope of the future of our race, for the seed is more readily sown, and thus a better chance of bringing forth much goodly intellectual fruit when it falls on the fertile mental field of youth than when it finds before it an older soil, already much occupied with worldly affairs.—London News.
